The following are systems listed on the front of this report. Each of these systems can be installed in either commercial or residential applications. Each of these systems requires maintenance and repair. Write in the hours you work each day on a particular system (commercial, residential or maintenance and repair). It is not necessary to accumulate hours in every possible category. For instance some apprentices may find that they rarely or never work in commercial work. Others may rarely or never work residential. If the work you are performing is not listed, ask your journeyman under which category to list the hours.
